

Found a lost pigeon?

First ensure the bird has some water available, and give it some seed in case it's hungry (parrot seed is fine, or even some rice, if nothing else is available try bread, pigeons do not eat meat.)

Check the bird's legs for a registration ring (lifetime band made of anodized aluminum or plastic). Some breeds have long foot feathering, so you may have to hunt through this to find it, often in these breeds the ring may be up high on the thigh. Once found write down all the numbers and letters on the ring don't forget to include the year.

Lost pigeon ring numbers January 2013 \(216.4 KiB, 4,097 hits\)

Important Note: If the pigeon does not have a ring then we will not be able to find its owner, it's likely a feral or wild bird. In that case once it's fit and healthy it can be released. Your local Vet can euthanize if it's beyond help.

For rings that have the Prefix: NEW, Newcastle, Lake Macquarie, Raymond Terrace, Maitland, Cessnock and Weston then you are in luck
